TERMS OF SERVICE

1. In order that the photographer's insurers can be appraised of the extent of the liability involved, the collective value of items designated for the commission must be declared by the client to the photographer prior to their being accepted for image capture and conveyed from the client to the studio.

It is then the insurers duty to advise the photographer to give true and reasonable assurance that where the photographer takes every reasonable measure to safeguard the clients property from loss or damage, that the photographer is fully indemnified by the insurer.

2. To validate the integrity of the commission, an inventory will be required listing each item to be photographed and its stock number, checked and signed by the client and photographer at the time of collection and again at the time of return. Where no stock number is present, the photographer will designate his own. RAW files will be stored and all copyrights retained by the photographer, reproduction in part or whole is subject to licence and the submission of an open property release signed by the client.
